We have been very pleased to welcome hundreds of Kwansai Gakuin University students to the University of Leicester over the years on short-, medium- and long-term exchange programmes.

KGU students tell us that they like coming to Leicester as it has all the amenities of a big city yet has a calm, welcoming and diverse environment.

In particular, KGU students enjoy the range of activities and trips that are provided during the short- and mid-term programmes. Leicester is ideally situated in the centre of England, making it convenient to explore the country, both through organised group trips or independently. London is only just over an hour away by train from Leicester and so very easy to visit on a day trip.

During the spring short-term programme, buddies from the University of Leicester accompany visiting students to social events and trips, providing an opportunity to make friends and learn about each other's lives and cultures. Another highlight of both the short and mid-term courses is the visit to a primary school where KGU students teach local pupils about Japanese culture.

All teaching and support staff in the Centre for International Training and Education are committed to providing an excellent educational and cultural experience for KGU students and value the opportunity to host and teach them on our programmes.
